day appealed to owners of laundries to maintain more reasonable prices. Complaints that charges for laundering many articles are disproportionate to the original cost, and that some laundry agents received commissions ranging from 35 to 45 per cent of the prices for the work, were made to the commission, it was said. The commission's appeal followed suspension of an investigation which was halted by a ruling of Attorney General Allen that laundry work is a service and not a necessary of life.

Society by JEAN ELIOT

COL. AND MRS. ROBERT M. THOMPSON, who are among the "discoverers" of Southampton, and have been identified with the summer colony there for many years, entertained at Fair Lawn yesterday for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seeger. This delightful pair, who, like the Beloved Vagabond, have cast off the shackles of possessions and are traveling up and down the coast making music as they go, spent some time in Washington in the spring, were entertained extensively and received all manner of important folk who motored out to inspect their "trailer." They gave a concert here, played at several private houses and set the social world to talking about the charm of their nomadic existence, the brilliance of Mrs. Seeger's work with the violin and the sympathy of the support which her composer-husband gives her.

Now a number of Washingtonians have had opportunity to hear them again, for Mr. Seeger and his wife, Constance Edson Seeger, gave a recital yesterday at the Thompsons' lovely place which skirts Lake Agawam. The first part of the program was played in the drawing room of the Thompson villa, and afterward the guests went to the lawn, where was stationed the trailer—hitched to a Ford—whose usefulness was explained by Mr. Seeger. Later he accompanied his wife in a violin solo on the little organ which they take from town to town in the trailer. After the music, tea was served under an ornate tent which Colonel Thompson brought from Egypt.

COL. AND MRS. HENRY MAY, who have a cottage at Southampton, Mrs. Robert Hinckley and Miss Gladys Hinckley were among the Washingtonians at the Thompsons' party; and in the list of "those present" one also notes the Francis Sullivan—the Sullivan girls from Philadelphia, who are such frequent visitors here—and lots of other names we all know. Mr. Seeger, as you probably remember, is a brother of Alan Seeger, the war poet, whose "I Have a Rendezvous with Death" proved prophetic. Mrs. Seeger is also extremely well connected and they have been "taken up" by many smart folk, who are interested in their unusual adventure.

Colonel Thompson, by the way, is spending rather more time at Southampton this summer than is his custom. The dear old gentleman has the wanderlust to a marked degree and is always starting off across the continent or overseas, usually accompanied by his grandsons or one or another of his nieces, or some one else half his years, while Mrs. Thompson stays on at the Southampton home that she loves.

Having given up their Washington home—or rather having had it sold over their heads—the Thompsons are preparing to spend the winter in California and we are all of us despondent at the prospect of losing them. The house in the Sheridan circle, which they occupied so long, was purchased in the spring by the Rumanian minister.

MRS. MARJORIE HELMBOLD MAHOOL, whose marriage to John Hixon Colman, of La Crosse, Wis., will take place today at 3 o'clock at the home of the bride's uncle, Dr. E. E. Crugen, in Baltimore. Mrs. Mahool is the daughter of Mrs. George D. Helmbold, of Washington.

Prince Antoine Bibesco, and the Rumanian legation is now established there.

MRS. HENRY P. FLETCHER, wife of the Undersecretary of State, who has been at Woods Hole, Mass., for several weeks, is expected back in Washington tomorrow or the day after.

Senator Henry W. Keyes will entertain a house party of men at Pine Grove Farm, North Haverhill, N. H., beginning Saturday, September 10.

Miss Laura Harlan, social secretary at the White House, who is now at Murray Bay, Province of Quebec, Canada, where she has a summer home, will return to Washington about the middle of September.

Don Juan Francisco de Cardenas, counselor of the Spanish embassy, will accompany the Spanish Ambassador, Senor de Riano, when he leaves today for Newport. The ambassador will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Gallatin.

Senator Takes Recess. Senator and Mrs. Andriens A. Jones will leave this evening for their home at East Las Vegas, New Mexico.
